

HOW TO CLEAR WHAT PUSHES OUR BUTTONS

"Facing vs. Avoidance" - Visualize a specific scene from a particularly charged moment from your past ... or imagine a scenario which you are anticipating may be disturbing in your future. Now place yourself physically facing the person, place, or thing which is upsetting to you and perform the following steps.

(1) Choose a moment: Recall a precise scene and moment in time—no more than a 5 second interval--in which your buttons were being pushed by another person or by a circumstance in life. This moment may have actually occurred in the past, or you may invent a moment which typifies a common repetitive occurrence ... you may also feel free to create a scene in your mind which you anticipate may trouble you or trigger you sometime in the future.

Important to note with this past or future scene are four facts which describe this moment in time precisely: i.e., (1) 'what time of day is it?', (2) 'where exactly am I?', (3) 'where exactly is my subject?', and (4) 'what specifically is being done or said?'. Write these descriptive points down on paper, so you may replay this scene back in your mind precisely each time you read it. The more real you can imagine this moment, the more likely it will reveal to you all of the subtle buttons which it triggers inside of you. An example of a specific scene written out may read something like this: "(1) Its 4:30 p.m., (2) I'm standing in the kitchen cooking facing the stove, (3) My husband is in the doorway, (4) He says, "Is that food that I smell in here, or did something die in the garbage disposal?"

(2) Rate: Ask, "On a scale of 0-10, If '0' = feeling nothing but total joy, how un-joyful do I feel considering everything that is happening in this moment of time?"

This number will be used as our starting level of un-joyfulness, which will be reassessed again and again as we perform the clearing process to see if it is decreasing.

(3) Ask: "Instead of total joy between us, what am I feeling now?"

Put this feeling into a simple sentence, such as "I'm feeling anger", or "I'm feeling you hate me", or "I'm feeling we don't communicate", or "I'm feeling you're still upset", etc. If you can't identify the feeling, you can use a number instead, for example "I'm feeling a 6 unjoyful in the relationship between us".

(4) Repeat Out loud: What you are feeling using this sentence, over & over ...

Our tendency is to try to avoid facing all that is challenging in our relationships and to try to avoid whoever is triggering our upset. Thus, periodically refresh the visualization of the person in front of you, facing him/her until the particular feeling fully subsides.

(5) Return to Step 1 and Re-Rate: Continue with these steps until you're happy with how much your emotional upset has subsided, or until you clear your way to a feeling of total joy in your relationship, and a feeling of total joy in the mood and field of the other person.